BIO

Jesse James Armijo picked up his dad's guitar as a teenager in San Antonio, Texas, and was playing chords before anyone had told him what a chord was. He moved to Austin to find out whether music could be a living. A chance meeting at a Guitar Center led to a sit-in at the Blind Pig Pub on 6th Street, then a residency, then 15 to 25 shows a month up and down the street.

Now based in the Pittsburgh area, Jesse builds every song live with a looper: a kick drum and percussion tapped from the body of his guitar, a beatboxed hi-hat, then rhythm, lead and vocals layered on top. No laptop, no backing tracks. He plays rock, blues, country, soul and modern hits, with 68+ songs in rotation and originals mixed in.
